

Sunil Sanghvi

Sunil Sanghvi is a Director in the Chicago Office of McKinsey & Company. He is the leader of McKinsey's Global Economic Development Practice and co leader of the Agriculture and Food Special Initiative. Mr. Sanghvi has served clients on a variety of strategic organizational and operational issues.

Around economic development, Mr. Sanghvi has worked with three different African countries around their agricultural transformations; with a leading Foundation as well as a leading bilateral donor on their strategies and organization; and with the Project Board companies of the World Economic Forum in developing the "New Vision for Agriculture" Roadmap. He has also advised on a large scale operational demonstration around financial inclusion in a Latin American country.

Mr. Sanghvi also serves private sector agriculture and food clients – including a multiyear growth program for a leading inputs company, a growth strategy for a fertilizer company, and strategic direction for a leading farmers' cooperative.

Mr. Sanghvi has been with McKinsey for almost 25 years. He has also worked at the World Bank around China agriculture and at Chevron Corporation as a process engineer.

Mr. Sanghvi obtained his M.B.A. from the Graduate School of Business at Stanford University and his B.S. and M.S. degrees in chemical engineering from M.I.T. He is married and has three daughters. He is active in international development efforts. He enjoys adventure travel and most sports including football and golf.

*****