Food Security Situation*

• Mozambique is an FAO low-income, food-deficit country that ranks 165 out of 169 countries on the UN 2010 Human Development Index. It is prone to a wide range of natural hazards, which regularly cause major damage and disrupt economic growth.

• Moderate food insecurity can be found in parts of the country that were affected by last season's drought and floods. Currently, 350,000 people from poorer households mostly living in the semi-arid, arid, and remote areas will require food assistance between now and the next major harvest in March 2011.

• With the onset of the lean season from October through February rural low-income and resource-poor households are facing food access constraints which are likely to continue in these areas until February. The lean season has already started and is expected to peak in December/January.
